

University of National Scope.

Of Humble and Unpretentious Beginning,
Howard University Has Won Title to High Rank in the Educational World.
Students Sustain Her Honor on Field and in Forum.

By OLIVER RANDOLPH.
Forty-two years have rolled by since the chartering of Howard university at Washington. Its beginning was humble and unpretentious. Today it ranks high in the educational world. Because of the fact that it is largely supported and maintained by the government of the United States it has a national significance to Afro-Americans. The last session of congress added $50,000 to its annual appropriation for the university and appropriated $50,000 for a new building for the department of science. There is also in course of construction a $50,000 library, the gift of Andrew Carnegie. Thirty-five states were represented by students during the session of 1908-9, which is an evidence of the national scope of the school. There were also 112 students from nine foreign countries.

Howard University.
elg countries. Here native Africans, East Indians, South Americans, West Indians and students of other nationalities come in quest of knowledge. They learn to love "Old Howard" with as much ardor as do the native American students. All fight for her honor on field and in forum.

He who thinks that Howard is not a real university in every sense of the word should be better informed. He should have his attention called to the fact that there are ninety-seven members of the university faculty, that there are seven schools offering twenty-one different courses, that its professors are men of profound learning, that it is well equipped in buildings and with funds and that it is well supplied with an excellent student body to carry on the work of a real university.

Besides increasing the number of her schools, she has increased the efficiency of her scholarship, which today compares favorably with that of any of the big schools of the east.

Glancing at the student life, we find such organizations as the Y. M. C. A., the Young Men's Glee club, the orchestra and the brass band taking the lead in the musical side of university life. Student societies are the Alpha Phi Literary, the Kappa Sigma Debating club, the Young Ladies' Century club, the Pestalozzi-Froebel society, the Theological Literary society, the Eureka Literary, the Young Men's Christian association and the Young Women's Christian association.

President Thirkield, whose zeal and industry have done so much to bring about the new era of progress, believes in the encouragement of these student organizations and also in the development of college sports and games.

Advance in Howard University.
This year marks a great advance in Howard university. The foundation of the new $50,000 library is in, and the construction of the building will be continued as rapidly as practicable, so that, if possible, it may be ready for occupancy early this fall. It is the gift of Mr. Carnegie and is 45 by 99 feet, constructed of red brick, trimmed with stone and terra cotta. It will be a beautiful building, well equipped with modern appliances.

The new Science hall, which is to cost $90,000, will also be completed soon. It is 60 by 125 feet, with three stories and a high basement, mostly above ground. It will have modern conveniences and first class equipment in all its laboratories and lecture rooms.

There have been added a new professor of physics and instructor in biology, an expert cataloguer and another worker in the library. This gives in the force of instruction two men in chemistry, two in physics and two in biology.

In 1908 two specialists were added to the faculty of the Teachers' college. This department has a great future. Though it has a growing attendance, it cannot prepare advanced teachers rapidly enough to meet the demand for them in the high schools, normal schools, industrial departments and colleges of the country.

The College of Arts and Sciences.
The College of Arts and Sciences is devoted to higher academic and liberal studies. The standard in extent and variety of courses is fully abreast of the standard of American colleges. There are courses in English, mathematics, astronomy, Greek, Latin, history, physics, chemistry, biology, geology, French, German, psychology, philosophy, pedagogy, commercial law, international law and social science.

Students of the College of Arts and Sciences share in the advantages offered by the professional departments of the university. Languages, history, science and psychology may be pursued as a basis of professional work in theology, law, medicine and teaching.

ing. Electives have been so arranged that students may hope to anticipate one year's work in the professional schools of the university.

The new Science building, with its superior modern equipment and the provision for practical instruction and work in applied sociology, adds new impetus to the college and brings its practical courses up to the requirements of up to date college work.

Professor Kelly Miller, who is widely known as a mathematician, sociologist, lecturer, author and educator, is dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

The Teachers' College.
Professor Lewis B. Moore, Ph. D., is dean of the Teachers' college, which was established as a department of pedagogy in May, 1899.

The aim is to supply a very definite demand for advanced professional training for teachers and a more serious study of educational problems. Its specific work is the training of teachers for kindergartens, elementary, high and normal schools and colleges.

There are five courses offered in this department:

The four year college course for the training of teachers of high schools, normal schools and colleges.

The two year normal training course for teachers of primary and grammar schools.

The kindergarten training course.

The courses in manual arts, domestic science and domestic art, offered by the combined faculties of the Teachers' college and the School of Manual Arts.

Courses in vocal and instrumental music.

Students of the Teachers' college are sent into the public schools of Washington as assistants to the regular teachers, where they get into the real atmosphere of actual school conditions and are given opportunity to apply the principles of education under real conditions.

The School of Medicine.
The School of Medicine, of which Dr. Edward A. Balloch is dean and Dr. W. C. McNeill is secretary, is the largest department of the university. During the past session 407 students were enrolled.

It comprises the medical, dental and pharmaceutical colleges and a postgraduate school and polyclinic. There are fifty-four members of the faculty.

The new Freedmen's hospital, which has 200 beds, furnishes unsurpassed clinical facilities for the students of this school. During the year ending June 30, 1909, the hospital cared for 2,590 in-patients and 3,358 out-patients.

The postgraduate school and polyclinic is for practitioners who are anxious to keep abreast of the latest advances in medicine, surgery and dentistry.

The Law Department.
The law department holds its sessions in a commodious building remodeled and fitted up for that purpose on Fifth street opposite the courthouse. It has a well equipped library open daily for the accommodation of students. A member of the faculty is in daily attendance both to preserve order and to assist the students in any difficulty they may encounter in their reading. Most of the faculty are engaged in the active practice of law, and all of its members are devoted to the interests of the school.

All of the courts of the District except those of inferior jurisdiction are in session throughout the school year. Students are privileged to attend the trial of all kinds of cases under forms of procedure which obtain in most of the states whenever it suits their convenience to do so.

B. F. Leighton, LL. B., is the dean of this department.

The Commercial College.
The Commercial college is one of the most important colleges in the university. Professor George W. Cook, A. M., LL. M., is dean of this college. Recognizing the growth of commercial interests in the United States, this college was established to prepare young men and women for the business world. Here one is fitted for the management of property and for expert accountancy.

It is expected of our graduates not only that they will prove capable of serving individual enterprises, but also that they will become significant factors in arousing entire communities to their obligations and privileges in the world of business.

The course is also recommended for those who desire to enter the civil service examinations. Commercial law, government, industrial history of the United States, commercial geography, political economy, typewriting, stenography and bookkeeping are among some of the courses offered.

Miss Bradford Takes Up Dentistry.
We are always pleased to note the progress of our young women. Many of them have had a hard struggle to get an education and a second hard time to get suitable occupation in keeping with their education and aspirations. The success of Miss Gertrude E. Curtis of Bradford, Pa., should be an inspiration to other young women. Miss Curtis is said to be the first Afro-American girl to practice dentistry in the northern or eastern states.

Pythian Week In New York.

Eleventh Biennial Session of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, Held at Odd Fellows' Hall, Largely Attended.
W. Ashbie Hawkins Re-elected Supreme Chancellor.

Members of the Order of the Knights of Pythias representing all sections of the country were in New York city attending the eleventh biennial session of the supreme lodge of the eastern and western hemispheres from Sept. 19 to 25, inclusive.

The session opened with the preaching of the biennial sermon at Bethel A. M. E. church by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Reverdy C. Ransom.

The formal opening, following the conferring of the supreme lodge degrees, was held in the Odd Fellows' hall in West Twenty-ninth street Monday, when R. E. Clarke, past grand chancellor of the New York state grand lodge, and Mrs. Belle Perkins delivered addresses of welcome. Fitting responses were made by Rev. Charles W. Hulse of Kansas City, Mo.; Charles W. Custis of Hartford, Conn.; D. M. Pappy of St. Augustine, Fla.; J. B. Loving of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Hattie Nix of Kansas City, Mo.

Reports submitted by the supreme officers showed there were a number of accessions of lodges in various states during the past two years, which offset the loss caused by the seceding of a number of Maryland lodges to the other faction of the order.

There have been two supreme lodges since 1889, when a disagreement took place on the question of endowment policies. Three years ago a meeting looking to the adjustment of differences was held in New York city, but nothing resulted.

That the reunification of the two wings will not take place in the near future was apparent in the biennial address of the supreme chancellor, W. Ashbie Hawkins of Baltimore, he declaring that he was opposed to a coalition until the question of endowments was satisfactorily settled.

The uniform rank and the Supreme Court of Colanthe, the women's auxiliary of the order, also held their biennial meeting. The meeting of the latter having served his church for three consecutive years as delegate to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church. As Sunday school missionary for the Cape Fear presbytery he worked his department up to a high point in both numbers and finance. Still another instance of the high esteem in which Professor Vick is held by the people may be seen from the fact that he was grand master of the Odd Fellows' fraternity of North Carolina for four years and was further honored by it on being elected grand secretary, which position he held for ten years.

In making the most of his opportunities for self help and advancement, the professor has set an example worthy to be copied by other young men. He is a shrewd business man, who by skill and economy invested his hard earnings wisely. He is the owner of several valuable pieces of real estate, besides his palatial residence of sixteen rooms, in the city of Wilson. He is known as a bookworm and has an excellent library of 3,000 volumes by the best authors. Professor Vick also runs three large farms, which are cultivated according to the most approved methods of agriculture.

Woman's Business League's Musical.
The Woman's Business League of Greater New York gave a very successful musicale at the Hotel Maceo, New York, on Thursday evening, Sept. 23, which was attended by many persons of business prominence and social influence. The league is the central organization for business women and aims to give encouragement and support to those engaged in business and the professions. It also urges the patronage of its constituents toward those who will give employment to Afro-Americans. Meetings are held the first Monday in each month. All persons interested in business enterprises conducted by the race are invited to attend the meetings.

Librarian Blue's Encouraging Report.
In his annual report Librarian T. H. Blue of the library for Afro-Americans at Louisville, Ky., gives the following figures, which show an increase of 40 per cent over that of 1908:

Number of visitors to the library during the year 68,827
Number of books borrowed for home use 60,398
Number of persons holding readers' cards 4,886
Attendance at stray hour and reading clubs 1,881
Number of reference questions asked 3,150
Per cent of fiction circulated 45

Mr. Blue is ably assisted in the work at the library by Mrs. Rachel Harris and Miss Elizabeth Finney.

Senator Dick Rescues Dr. Washington.
When the Rev. Howard McAyda, pastor of the First Congregational church, Akron, O., failed in his effort to secure accommodations for Dr. Booker T. Washington at the Buchtel hotel during his recent visit to that city, Senator Charles Dick immediately invited Dr. Washington to be his guest at his palatial mansion on West Hill. Mr. Washington was booked to speak at the First Congregational church, of which the Rev. Mr. McAyda is pastor, who afterward decided to entertain Dr. Washington himself.

Intermarriage by Military Authority.
The case of A. G. Thornton, a rich white man from Fayetteville, N. C., who during reconstruction days (1866) married Miss Elsie Hargrove, an Afro-American, is perhaps the only instance on record in the state of such a marriage, which was granted by military authority. Their marriage was further sanctioned by the constitutional convention two years later. Mr. Thornton died at Fayetteville Sept. 18 in the eighty-fifth year of his age. The deceased leaves a widow and five children.

Anderson Appointed on Commission.
Charles W. Anderson, internal revenue collector for the second district, New York, was appointed a member of the Hudson-Fulton celebration commission by Mayor George B. McClellan Sept. 22. Bishop Alexander Walters, Mr. J. Frank Wheaton, Mr. Edward E. Lee, Proprietor B. F. Thomas of the Hotel Maceo and Editor N. B. Dodson are represented on the executive and general committees.

SHREWD BUSINESS MAN.

Ex-Postmaster and School Principal an Example For Young Men.

Professor Samuel H. Vick, who served as postmaster at Wilson, N. C., for nine years and who was afterward principal of the city graded school for Afro-Americans, has attained success in many large and varied interests for the uplift of the race. In the positions above mentioned he showed great capacity for quickly and peaceably disposing of difficult problems. His business experience and manner of dealing with public affairs won for him the highest praise and confidence of the people of the community whose interests he so wisely conserved.

Professor Vick is widely known in religious circles in North Carolina.

For School Commissioners'

The Public Press and Opinion Favorable to Re-election of Present Board. Their Fitness is Beyond Question.

Ten Indianapolis men and one Indianapolis woman have signified their intention of becoming candidates for the five places which are to be filled in the coming city election on the Board of School Commissioners.

While all the places will be filled in the coming election, only three will take office the first of the year. The other two will assume their duties Jan. 1, 1912. The present members of the board are Charles W. Moores, president; Andrew M. Sweeney, H. C. Sicks, John H. Emrich and William H. Taylor. All except Sweeney have become candidates for re-election. The terms of the first three named will expire Jan. 1, 1910, while those of the last two will expire two years later.

The candidates for the places must designate in their petition for places on the ticket which term they seek, and thus the candidates for the first term will be as follows, and the voters must choose from these candidates the three they favor for this term, the names being arranged alphabetically:

Dr. F. C. Heath.
Joseph A. McGowan.
Charles W. Moores.
Dr. Frank A. Morrison.
Miss Mary Nicholson.
Henry C. Sicks.
Harry D. Tutewiler.

SECOND TERM CANDIDATES.
In choosing two men for the second term the voter, as he enters stand now, will have a choice of four candidates. They are: John E. Emrich, Dr. John W. Sluss, Wm. M. Taylor and Geo. M. Weber.

OFFICE PAYS NOTHING.

There is no salary or other compensation attached to the office of school commissioner in Indianapolis. The position has come to be regarded as one of great honor and almost without exception the candidates for the places have been of the highest class men and women in the city, whose desire for service has been unselfish.

Under the law it is illegal for the holders to show the political faith of a candidate for the School Board and the management in the past has been non-partisan, despite the fact that practically all the members have been Republicans. The law is so particular in its provisions for a non-partisan board that it even provides a penalty for an election officer who divulges to a voter the political faith of a candidate.

Charles W. Moores, the present president of the School Board and candidates for re-election to the board, began worldly activities by carrying newspapers. He was born in Indiana and received his education in the public schools here, at Butler College, Wabash College, at Crawfordsville, and the Central Law school of this city.

He worked his way through college by selling books. He also taught school. He lives with his wife and two children at 1918 North Pennsylvania street. Both children are in the public schools. He was admitted to the Indianapolis bar on his twenty-first birthday anniversary. He has held the office of United States Commissioner since 1888, and has been on the School Board since 1900. He has been director of Butler College and is now a director of the Indianapolis Association and the University Club.

Henry W. Sicks, who is a candidate for re-election on the School Board, began at the bottom and has climbed to the position of assistant superintendent for the Western Union Telegraph Company of Indiana. He began as a messenger boy, later taking a desk in the local office. He comes from one of the oldest Hoosier families. He lives at 2027 North Illinois street and is married. His three children are now attending the public schools. Mr. Sicks has been a member of the Board of School Commissioners since 1900.

William M. Taylor was a warm friend of George Ade and John T. McCutcheon during his college days at Purdue University. He is a Sigma Chi member of the same class with Charles W. Moores. He was born here and received his early education in the local public schools. He lives at 2426 East Washington street with his wife and three children. The children are now attending the public schools. After he was graduated from Purdue he attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston. He is now a member of the Board of School Commissioners, having served eight years.

John H. Emrich was born on a farm in Wayne county. His education was obtained in the public schools of this city, which he attended after his parents moved here in 1865. He is married and lives at 34 West Vermont st. His only son, a graduate of the Manual Training High School, is an artist with a studio in New York city. Mr. Emrich has served on the Board of School Commissioners ten years. He is the president of the Indianapolis Chair and Furniture Company and is secretary and treasurer of the Emrich Furniture Company. He is one of the candidates for re-election to the board.

Andrew M. Sweeney was born in Ireland and came to this country when a young man. He is married and lives at 34 West Vermont st. His only son, a graduate of the Manual Training High School, is an artist with a studio in New York city. Mr. Emrich has served on the Board of School Commissioners ten years. Colored Population Of United States.

National Tribune, Washington, D. C.

The census bulletin relating to the negro population of the United States is of the greatest interest. All of the colored population are grouped under the head of "negroes" without attempting to differentiate those who have some infusion of white blood. The cities which have the largest numbers of negroes are:

Washington, D. C. 86,702
Baltimore, Md. 79,258
New Orleans, La. 77,714
Philadelphia, Pa. 62,613
New York city, N. Y. 60,768
Memphis, Tenn. 49,120
Louisville, Ky. 39,120
St. Louis, Mo. 35,516
Richmond, Va. 32,320
Charleston, S. C. 31,522
Chicago, Ill. 30,150
Nashville, Tenn. 30,044
Savannah, Ga. 28,000

It will be a surprise to many to know how few negroes there are in the prominent Southern cities. For example, 31,522 in Charleston, and about the same in the great city of St. Louis, with its 600,000 population. Even in New Orleans, which were led to believe overflows with negroes, there are but 77,714 in a total population 287,104, or less than one negro to four whites.

The states which have the largest negro population are:

Alabama 827,307
Georgia 1,034,813
Florida 230,730
Kentucky 284,706
Louisiana 650,804
Maryland 295,630
Mississippi 161,234
Missouri 624,469
North Carolina 782,321
South Carolina 480,243
Tennessee 620,722
Texas 660,722
Virginia 660,722

The Northern states which have the largest population are:

District of Columbia 86,702
Illinois 85,078
Massachusetts 85,078
New Jersey 85,078
New York 85,078
Ohio 85,078
Pennsylvania 85,078
After all our talk about the negroes flocking to the towns it appears that more than three-fourths (77.3 per cent) of them live in the country districts. That the negroes are industrious is shown by the fact that 3,993,337 of them are engaged in gainful occupations. This is almost one half of the entire number, which is a very creditable showing for the race. The birth rate of the negroes has been steadily decreasing, and showed a marked reduction in the decade between 1880 and 1890. It is still higher than that of the whites, but the death rates is almost double that of the whites. In 1900 the death rate of negroes 30.2 per cent, while that of the whites was only 17.3 per cent. The total number of negroes in the United States according to the last census, 8,840,789. In 1790, the first census, there were 637,897 slaves reported; the free negroes would have carried the total up to nearly 800,000, showing that the negroes have increased about tenfold in that time, while the total population of the country increased from 3,026,214 to nearly 90,000,000. The total population has increased about twenty-three times.

It is still higher than that of the whites, but the death rates is almost double that of the whites. In 1900 the death rate of negroes 30.2 per cent, while that of the whites was only 17.3 per cent. The total number of negroes in the United States according to the last census, 8,840,789. In 1790, the first census, there were 637,897 slaves reported; the free negroes would have carried the total up to nearly 800,000, showing that the negroes have increased about tenfold in that time, while the total population of the country increased from 3,026,214 to nearly 90,000,000. The total population has increased about twenty-three times.

After all our talk about the negroes flocking to the towns it appears that more than three-fourths (77.3 per cent) of them live in the country districts. That the negroes are industrious is shown by the fact that 3,993,337 of them are engaged in gainful occupations. This is almost one half of the entire number, which is a very creditable showing for the race. The birth rate of the negroes has been steadily decreasing, and showed a marked reduction in the decade between 1880 and 1890. The Poor Boy Career.

When the life struggles of men like Harriman and the late Governor Johnson are recounted there are some to sigh because "times have changed" and a poor boy couldn't emulate such careers now. But old times had changed before the Harriman boy and the Johnson boy got into the struggle. Times had changed between the poor boy Lincoln and Harriman's day, and they had changed between the day of Dick Whittington, "lord mayor of London," and of Lincoln. There's nothing new in this that times change and nothing extraordinary about boys getting to be something from nothing.

When Lincoln and his needy contemporary, Horace Greeley, were walking up and down the land "to ask a brother of the earth to give them leave to toll" it was the wall of the hour that money and privilege ruled everywhere. About that time Tennyson sang "Every door is barred with gold and opens but to golden keys." He spoke for England, but it was echoed in this country as fitting a situation where a few "southern nabobs" and a handful of New England aristocrats slammed the door of advancement in the poor boy's face. Even if it be harder today for the poor boy to get up, the prize is all the richer, and native pluck and hard work are rewarded just as they were a generation ago. Let the poor boy pitch in anywhere. He'll find something doing "along the whole line."

Although the "shorter and uglier" word has been sadly overworked, it may yet have to take a hand in the disputes over the pole and life on the planet Mars.

Now that the pole is found and we have learned to fly, the only excitement left is to watch the Mauretania and Lusitania clip each other's records.

Taft's swing around the circle is no idle wandering to "call on the folks." He has to hustle to keep his dates, and every date means something.

Will youngsters lose faith in Santa Claus from the fact that Cook and Peary failed to locate their old friend in the ice belt?

A century ago Napoleon thought Robert Fulton a visionary. Now Napoleon ranks as a dreamer and Fulton as a man of deeds.

Even the north pole wind can be whistled down by a vital proposition.

Postal Savings Banks.

No feature of President Taft's speeches has aroused more discussion than his advocacy of postal savings banks. From the people there has been general commendation and from the bankers opposition. The proposal is not new, inasmuch as President Roosevelt favored it and there had been agitation in its favor before his time. The fact that President Taft places such emphasis upon it, however, has brought it into the domain of live issues, whereas the previous discussion had been in a sense academic.

In the consideration of the question some points should not be overlooked. One is the president's statement that the postal banks would not injure existing savings institutions, but would act as feeders. In European countries, where postal savings banks are already in existence, this is found to be actually the case. It is only the very small amounts that are deposited in the postal concerns. As soon as the depositor gets together any considerable sum he takes it to the old line savings bank, where he can get a higher rate of interest. This furnishes a powerful incentive to deposit in the private banks, at least when there is an amount worth while.

If Halley's comet had known that aviators and pole discoverers were taking all the front pages it would have waited a few months to make its appearance.

Hudson and Columbus didn't dispute with rivals about their discoveries. But a hero destroyer is born for that job about every generation.

We have not alone the polar dispute to settle, but must settle the polar region itself in order to have valid title to the land—or ice.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The opening week in the Y. M. C. A. was indeed a high success. Never before in the history of the Ass'n has the interest been manifested that has been shown during the last week and a big seasons work is apparent. The rooms look splendid in the new paper and fresh paint, making it a very beautiful place to spend a very useful evening.

The Gymnasium classes which are under the direction of the newly appointed Physical Director, Harrison J. Mays were well attended, four classes being conducted in this department; the seniors, business and professional men, working boys and juniors. The Tuesday night Bible class opened with an attendance of 22. This class meets at 7 p. m. and dismisses at 7:55. All men are invited to join. The Literary which meets on Tuesday at 8 p. m. is sure to be a success. The Glee club is open to all and meets on Wednesday and the orchestra on Friday night.

On Sundays during October the workers will meet at the Ass'n rooms and various matters pertaining to the work will be gone over, especially the "Monster Meeting," which opens on Oct. 31, with Mr. A. H. Godard as the opening speaker. The new shower bath and locker room that has been added to the Ass'n equipment will prove a much needed addition and will fill a long felt want. This has been provided for the organization of the Ass'n. The Ass'n membership is the largest of any colored Ass'n in the country being 400 strong.

A Card of Thanks.

While playing with the Black Patti Troubadours in New Orleans, last winter Mrs. Tutt contracted a severe cold, which developed into consumption. She was twenty years old and was married two years ago to Homer Tutt, who is touring the South with the Southern Smart Set Company. Deceased leaves, besides a husband, father, mother and two sisters.

THE NEGRO'S BEST FRIEND.

Example of the Good Samaritan and the Golden Rule Presented.

Let those who are constantly howling about the southern white man being the Negro's best friend remember that while the southern white man was spending his fortune to keep the race in slavery, to continue it as goods and chattels, a "thing" and not a man or even a human being except in so far as flesh and blood were concerned, brave, humane, liberty loving, God fearing men in other sections of the United States were using their fortunes, their brains and influence to arouse public sentiment against the damnable curse of slavery that the Negro might be free. Who is the Negro's best friend? The person who is willing to concede him his rights as a man and a citizen. Who is the Negro's best friend? The person who is willing to obey the law of the land; one who believes in justice and equality before the law; the person who will give him the opportunity to labor at such occupation as he is qualified to follow; one who is willing to give him equal pay for the same quality of work as may be done by other men. Who is the Negro's best friend? The person who will not lead or follow or sanction a mob to run the Negro down, riddle his body with bullets, cut his throat, swing him upon a tree, pour kerosene oil over his body, burn it to the ground and box the ashes and sell them as souvenirs as an exhibition of his bravery without giving him a chance to be heard before a court of justice. The example of the good Samaritan is a splendid lesson for those who will take the time to learn it, and, above all, the Golden Rule is pre-eminently the safest guide for all mankind to follow.

EDWARDS-NORRIS NUPTIALS.

Big Social Event Which Brought Together Many Prominent Persons.

A most brilliant social event of more than local importance was the recent marriage of Miss Catherine Ruth Norris at Greenville, N. C., to Professor G. A. Edwards of Shaw university. Raleigh, N. C. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. F. Pope of the theological department of Shaw university in the presence of a large gathering of society folks from many sections of the state. Professor Frazier, dean of the college department of Shaw, acted as best man. The bride and groom are well known in business, educational and social circles in their home cities. Mrs. Edwards is one of the most accomplished musicians of Greenville and is also noted for her literary activities. After the ceremony the wedding party left for Raleigh, where the happy couple will make their permanent residence. They were met at the depot by a host of admiring friends.

Among the guests who acted in an official capacity were Miss Mary L. Sommerville of Portsmouth, Va., who played the wedding march. Miss Sommerville is one of the most skillful musicians of Portsmouth, having made a specialty of piano music. Her services are in large demand by churches and societies. Others present were Mrs. Cora L. Parker, Miss Sarah F. Norris and Miss Frances Platt.

CAUCASIAN PERVERSITY.

Negroes Copying Evil Example of Southern White Men.

Under the caption "Negroes Learn Quickly" the Brooklyn Daily Eagle in a recent editorial says:
 The lesson of lawlessness which white men south of Mason and Dixon's line have been teaching the Negroes for forty years was not a hard lesson to learn. It was easy to grasp, as isolated facts have proved, but its community application had to wait for opportunity.

The opportunity has come in Taft, Okla., which is an Afro-American town. Three white men have moved in. They were warned to clear out under pain of death, and a store started by one of them has been incinerated. With the inherent perversity of the Caucasian, each of the menaced citizens refuses to fade away, and more trouble is expected.

The rights of a minority are about as hard to protect in an organized community as in a joint stock company. We have no doubt, however, that the governor of Oklahoma, who is a white man, will do his best for his fellow Anglo-Saxons in their emergency.

New Intellectual Star in the West.
 Otis M. Shackelford of Kansas City, Mo., has recently published a volume of autobiography in verse and essays entitled "Seeking the Best." The author is a man of considerable literary ability. The purpose of the book is to stimulate Afro-American youth to aspire to make the most of their education in a helpful way, for the advancement of the race. It points out self respect, perseverance, thrift and honesty as essential factors to success in life. Mr. Shackelford uses simple words to convey his meaning. The first part of the book is given to a detailed account of the author's childhood and experience in getting an education.

Whipped and Ordered to Leave.
 Infuriated by the attack of a white man on a young girl of their own color, the Negroes of a thickly settled neighborhood about two miles from Spartanburg, S. C., seized the girl's assailant and, after administering a severe whipping, forced him to leave the country. The sheriff and a posse of citizens, heavily armed, went to the scene of the trouble to avert a threatened race riot—Washington Star.

Second Baptist Rally a Success

The all-day rally at Second Baptist church last Sunday was a grand success. At the close of the service an elegant dinner was served in the lecture room of the church. Rev. B. J. Prince, Pastor, preached a stirring sermon in the morning and Rev. K. Wanned, of Olivet Baptist church, in the afternoon. A sacred song service was given at night, after which the seven rally clubs reported. The total collection for the rally was over $850.

Prominent Odd Fellow Dead.

C. in England, and was also the Fraternal Delegate to the A. M. C. at Bolton, England, Whitwick, June 1897. In 1902 at New Haven, Conn., he was elected Grand Master of the G. U. O. of O. Arnold-Marshall.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. John Marshall on N. Senate ave., Thursday evening, Sept. 23, when their daughter, Miss Stella B. was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. A. Arnold, by the Rev. John S. Bailey of Simpson Chapel M. E. church. The pianist Miss Jessie Johnson played a charming program of bridal airs before the ceremony. As the bridal party entered the parlors, which were decorated profusely with palms, asparagus and maiden hair fern, the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march were played, and during the ceremony, "Oh Promise Me" was rendered. The bride wore a princess gown of white messeline satin. Her tulle veil was fastened with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of roses, red with streamers of satin. Miss Sarah Boyer was the maid of honor and wore a white mull dress and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. The bride with her father was met in the parlor by the groom and his best man, Mr. Claude Blacklock of Boston, Mass. Mr. Taylor Gist, a cousin of the bride and Mr. Everett Bailey were attendants to the party. Little Hazel Jackson was the flower girl. Those who assisted in receiving were Mesdames Mollie M. McCowan, Belle Mitchell, Mary Jackson and Warfield, Misses Ora Skelton and Laura Ellington. The out of town guests were: Rev. Chas. Jones, of Milford, Ohio, Mrs. Foster, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mrs. Wm. To The Public.

We, Damon Co. No. 1, U. R. K. of P. and Marion Co. No. 2, desire to state to the public the reason why we did not attend the Supreme Lodge and the encampment at Kansas City. Mo. The only reason is that we did not have the amount of money it would take to defray the expenses of such a trip. We had in joint treasury, $456.32. This amount was distributed between four companies, according to the strength of each company as follows: Damon Co. No. 1, $159.90; Marion Co. 2, $142.10; Chancellor No. 3; $86.60; Grenadier, No. 7, $89.33. This money according to number of men in each company, who was eligible to enter competitive drill, and members of the various staffs of 1st Battalion of 1st Reg., amounted to as per each man, $4.90. The fare to Kansas City and return was $18.75. This did not include board. Damon Co. whose line up was 21 men and 2 supernumers; total for company 23 men, including officers. This means that it cost to take Damon Co. to Kansas City, $431.25; the same applies to Marion Co. No. 2. The amount of money in the joint treasury was raised from the proceeds of various entertainments, and picnics; the collection at the Pythian annual sermon was also allowed the company, which was $79.00, the amount of money that was turned over to Damon Co. No. 1 and the amount turned over to Marion Co. 2. We desire to state to the public, that this money has been deposited in the treasury of each of these companies, less the $4.90 per, which was allowed to all who was able to go to Kansas City and pay the balance of their fare. We make this public statement, so that our friends can see what we are doing. The Watch Word is On to Richmond in 1910, the largest encampment the state has ever had and 5,000 strong for 1911. Watch us grow. We are open for new recruits.

Yours in H. J. L.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Bluford Hillman, last Saturday afternoon, Sept. 25th. She was 45 years old. She was a faithful member of the Baptist church, having been in the church at Evansville several years ago and on coming to Terre Haute, over 13 years ago, joined the 2nd Missionary Baptist church, under the late Elder Stephen Clay. During her stay in our city she was a loyal member of her church, a dutiful wife and an upright citizen. She leaves a husband, two brothers and a host of friends to mourn her loss. Mrs. Susie Hayden, who came to our city a year ago, has gone back to her old home in Greencastle, and contemplates making a visit soon, to Ken tucky. If we want a church to prosper and be one of the greatest powers for good in a community, it must receive the combined support of the minister, all members, probationers, Sunday school pupils, all the auxiliaries of the church and friends of the neighborhood. The minister must be a man of high moral character a spiritual advisor of his flock, a true Christian gentleman, must be sociable, refined, educated, both in head and soul, and a man who can devote his time and talent to his church, for its spiritual, moral and financial interests. The members, auxiliaries and friends must love their church. They must always have an interest in their church above that of any other. Union, love, friendship, godliness and patience must exist in the minds and hearts of all. They must co-operate with the minister in all his efforts for good in his church, both spiritually and financially. There is no reason why we should not have strong progressive churches right here in Terre Haute. Nothing will put a congregation before the city, county, State or the world like a first class church. If a church wishes to be strong and influential it must do right, at all times and under all circumstances. Let us all have church pride.

Young received another week's contract from the Chicago theatre company to play vaudeville. The contract states that the young men are to receive a salary of $50 per week. Statistics show that more colored people get married in Chicago than any other city in the country. Emancipation Celebration at Evansville. The colored Y. M. C. A. of this city conducted the most successful Emancipation celebration last Wednesday, Sept. 22nd, that has ever been held for years. It took place in Barnett's grove. The speaker for the occasion was Prof. James H. Williams of Rushville. Prof. Davis, president of the Y. M. C. A., was chairman of the meeting. Rev. W. H. Anderson introduced Prof. Williams, pronouncing him one of the finest orators in the west, black or white. He amply sustained Rev. Anderson's estimate, for he delivered one of the most beautiful and effective orations ever heard from rostrum, pulpit or chautauqua platform. He has great dramatic power, a fine presence, a magnetic voice and a marvelous command of classic English. He is, in fine, a born orator, gifted with a rich, native eloquence, and possessed of a refined culture that is a prime requisite of a master in effective discourse. Under the guidance of the Y. M. C. A., the Emancipation celebration bids fair to become an establishment, an institutional affair to be perpetual from year to year. The Y. M. C. A. is doing a great work here, and richly merits the encouragement it is receiving from our best citizens, both black and white. It is through such uplifting agencies as this that our race must make its way up to higher levels of achievement.

Lesson I.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 3, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxi, 27-39. Memory Verse, 39—Golden Text, II Tim. ii, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our last lesson in the Acts left Paul and his companions at Jerusalem, whither they had just returned from Paul's third missionary journey, and there we resume the story and imagine ourselves present at the service, when, in the presence of James and the elders, Paul declared particularly what things God had wrought among the gentiles by His ministry, and with them we would glorify the Lord (verses 19, 20). Right here comes in our perplexity concerning the advice from the church to Paul that for peace sake he should conform to certain things which were not essential, but which were made much of by the Jews at Jerusalem who believed—the thousands of Jews who believed, yet continued zealous of the law. That Paul should consent to this suggestion seems somewhat like doing what he condemned Peter for doing in Gal. ii, 11-14. There is always trouble when we depart from the simplicity that is in Christ (II Cor. xi, 3) and seek to keep peace with legal Christians by conforming to their ways instead of standing fast in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free (Gal. v, 1). Well, the plan did not work, for the Jews which were of Asia succeeded in exciting the city against Paul, and he would have been killed had not the chief captain with centurions and soldiers rescued him from the mob who were beating him to death.

In Paul's defense, as recorded in the next chapter, he acknowledges that the Lord had said to him some time after his conversion, "Make haste and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem, for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me; depart, for I will send thee far hence unto the gentiles" (xxii, 18, 21). This, with chapter xxi, 4, and the events which followed Paul's return to Jerusalem at this time, cause me to think that perhaps there was something of Paul in all this and that his years of imprisonment might have been avoided. No one is qualified to throw any stones at him, for who is there that has not been at some time or other very set in his own way because he thought it was the Lord's way, notwithstanding the opinion and the advice of his most intimate fellow believers? Then see how the Lord overruled it all to give us His most helpful epistles from prison, in some of which we can almost hear the clanking of his chains, as some one has said. See Eph. iv, 1, Col. iv, 18.

But, to return to our story and to pursue it, Paul must have been strong, ly reminded of his own zeal against "the way" in past years as he heard the mob cry, "Away with him!" and a little later, "Away with such a fellow from the earth, for it is not fit that he should live" (xxi, 36; xxii, 22). The people were so violent that not only had the soldiers to rescue him from them, but they actually had to carry him. Asking permission to speak as he was about to be led into the castle, the chief captain was surprised that his prisoner could speak Greek, and then Paul had a new occasion to understand what it meant to be falsely accused and numbered with transgressors, for the captain asked him if he was not an Egyptian who had made an uproar and had led 4,000 murderers into the wilderness (verse 38). Paul acknowledged himself a blasphemer and a persecutor (I Tim. i, 13), but to be reckoned a captain of 4,000 murderers was a pretty heavy accusation. As followers of Christ we must be content for His sake to have laid to our charge things we know not (Ps. xxxv, 11). Paul's testimony for himself was that he was a Jew of Tarsus, a citizen of no mean city. In xxii, 25, and back in xvi, 37, he pleads that he is a Roman citizen, a citizenship not purchased with money, but his by birth. Because of a great price, even the precious blood of Christ, paid for our redemption, all who receive Him are thus born from above and become citizens of that holy city the new Jerusalem (John i, 12, 13; Phil. iii, 20). Being citizens of such a city, how glad we should be to bear anything for His sake who at such infinite cost has made us such, and how eager we should be to have others enrolled as such citizens, for any one from any part of the wide world may have the privilege.

Paul addressed the multitude in Hebrew, and when they heard him speak in that language they kept the more silence. He rehearsed the story of his birth and education and his zeal toward God such as they were that day manifesting. Then he told how Jesus of Nazareth, risen from the dead and ascended to heaven, had appeared to him on the way to Damascus and convinced him that He was Israel's Messiah and the Saviour of all men and that he was to bear the good news to all men of forgiveness of sins through His name. When they heard of his being sent to the gentiles they as Jews had no use for such a man, cast off their clothes, threw dust into the air and made such an uproar that the chief captain was only prevented from scourging him that he might find out what he had been talking about (for he had been speaking in Hebrew) by Paul's question, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman and uncondemned?" (xxii, 2.)

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxi, 27-39. Memory Verse, 39—Golden Text, II Tim. ii, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our last lesson in the Acts left Paul and his companions at Jerusalem, whither they had just returned from Paul's third missionary journey, and there we resume the story and imagine ourselves present at the service, when, in the presence of James and the elders, Paul declared particularly what things God had wrought among the gentiles by His ministry, and with them we would glorify the Lord (verses 19, 20). Right here comes in our perplexity concerning the advice from the church to Paul that for peace sake he should conform to certain things which were not essential, but which were made much of by the Jews at Jerusalem who believed—the thousands of Jews who believed, yet continued zealous of the law. That Paul should consent to this suggestion seems somewhat like doing what he condemned Peter for doing in Gal. ii, 11-14. There is always trouble when we depart from the simplicity that is in Christ (II Cor. xi, 3) and seek to keep peace with legal Christians by conforming to their ways instead of standing fast in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free (Gal. v, 1). Well, the plan did not work, for the Jews which were of Asia succeeded in exciting the city against Paul, and he would have been killed had not the chief captain with centurions and soldiers rescued him from the mob who were beating him to death.

In Paul's defense, as recorded in the next chapter, he acknowledges that the Lord had said to him some time after his conversion, "Make haste and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem, for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me; depart, for I will send thee far hence unto the gentiles" (xxii, 18, 21). This, with chapter xxi, 4, and the events which followed Paul's return to Jerusalem at this time, cause me to think that perhaps there was something of Paul in all this and that his years of imprisonment might have been avoided. No one is qualified to throw any stones at him, for who is there that has not been at some time or other very set in his own way because he thought it was the Lord's way, notwithstanding the opinion and the advice of his most intimate fellow believers? Then see how the Lord overruled it all to give us His most helpful epistles from prison, in some of which we can almost hear the clanking of his chains, as some one has said. See Eph. iv, 1, Col. iv, 18.

But, to return to our story and to pursue it, Paul must have been strong, ly reminded of his own zeal against "the way" in past years as he heard the mob cry, "Away with him!" and a little later, "Away with such a fellow from the earth, for it is not fit that he should live" (xxi, 36; xxii, 22). The people were so violent that not only had the soldiers to rescue him from them, but they actually had to carry him. Asking permission to speak as he was about to be led into the castle, the chief captain was surprised that his prisoner could speak Greek, and then Paul had a new occasion to understand what it meant to be falsely accused and numbered with transgressors, for the captain asked him if he was not an Egyptian who had made an uproar and had led 4,000 murderers into the wilderness (verse 38). Paul acknowledged himself a blasphemer and a persecutor (I Tim. i, 13), but to be reckoned a captain of 4,000 murderers was a pretty heavy accusation. As followers of Christ we must be content for His sake to have laid to our charge things we know not (Ps. xxxv, 11). Paul's testimony for himself was that he was a Jew of Tarsus, a citizen of no mean city. In xxii, 25, and back in xvi, 37, he pleads that he is a Roman citizen, a citizenship not purchased with money, but his by birth. Because of a great price, even the precious blood of Christ, paid for our redemption, all who receive Him are thus born from above and become citizens of that holy city the new Jerusalem (John i, 12, 13; Phil. iii, 20). Being citizens of such a city, how glad we should be to bear anything for His sake who at such infinite cost has made us such, and how eager we should be to have others enrolled as such citizens, for any one from any part of the wide world may have the privilege.

Paul addressed the multitude in Hebrew, and when they heard him speak in that language they kept the more silence. He rehearsed the story of his birth and education and his zeal toward God such as they were that day manifesting. Then he told how Jesus of Nazareth, risen from the dead and ascended to heaven, had appeared to him on the way to Damascus and convinced him that He was Israel's Messiah and the Saviour of all men and that he was to bear the good news to all men of forgiveness of sins through His name. When they heard of his being sent to the gentiles they as Jews had no use for such a man, cast off their clothes, threw dust into the air and made such an uproar that the chief captain was only prevented from scourging him that he might find out what he had been talking about (for he had been speaking in Hebrew) by Paul's question, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman and uncondemned?" (xxii, 2.)
